Scaman Rogerson of the Hampshire Last Man to Set Eyes on Field Marshal, Tells How Only Rafts Could Be Launched in Rough Sea-Ship Suddenly Went Down Head First.

The last man who caw Lord Kitch. ener alive was Seaman Rogerson, a survivor of the Hampshire, who ar-rived at his home near London from the Orkneys, and describes in the Daily Mail how the field marshal died.

"Of those who left the ship and have survived," said Rogerson, "I was the one who saw Kitchener last. He went down with the ship. He did not leave her. I saw Captain Saviil help his boat crew to clear away his galley. At the same time the captain was calling to Kitchener to come to his boat. Ow-ing to the noise made by the wind and sea Lord Kitchener could not lear him.

Walked Calmly From Captain's Cabin. "When the explosion occurred Lord Kitchener walked calmly from the captain's cabin and went up a ladder on the quarterdeck. There I saw him walking about quite collectedly and talking to two officers. All three were wearing kball and had on no overcoats. Lord Kitchener was calmly watching the preparations for abandoning the ship, which were going on in a steady and orderly way.

"The crew just went to their stations, obeyed orders and did their best to get out the boats, but that was im possible. Owing to the rough weather no boats could be lowered. Those that were got out were smashed. No boats left the ship. What the people on shore thought to be boats leaving were ener was on deck at the time she sank.

"I got away on one of the rafts, and we had a terrible five hours in the wafer. It was so rough that the seas beat down on us, and many of the men were killed by the bulleting. Many others died from the plercing cold. "An overpowering desire for sleep

"As we neared the shore the situation grew worse. The fury of the sea dashed our raft against the rocks with tremendous force. A number of men were killed in this way. I don't quite know how I got ashore, for all feeling had gone out of me.

"My belief is that the Hampshire struck a mine, which exploded under her forepart. It could not have been a submarine in such weather, and an internal explosion in one of her magazines would have ripped her apart. It was hard luck-coming to such an end after going through the battle of Jut. after going through the bettle of Jut-land unscathed. We led the Iron Duke into that action and sank a German light croiser and two submarines, but did not have a single casualty ourselves, although big shells rained into

Tests were made with a dyramouster, which sujunationly registers the exact number of pounds pulled by each muscle group of the lody.

EVANGELIST W. F. LaROWE Pleading the spirit to vielt Ander son LaRowe wishes to state to the public why he did not go to the Gluck mill. An invitation to carry on a revival at Gluck was extended to me by the people, but the building in which the services were to be conducted is owned by the Gluck mill, as well as all adjoining property, and the company does not want me.

LaRowe wishes to announce, there fore, that he will go beyond the "King's Highway," and will hold a meeting at the Twine mill all this week. Also, desires to thank the churches, officers and preachers at Orrville for their kindness, if there was any shown. The Bible ays en-tertain strangers and also love one another. haven't been seen inside of a church in fifteen years are regular attendants at my meetings.

Next Sunday, July 2nd, I will deliver a message to men only. No ladies or boys inder sixteen will be admitted. This service will be held at the court house, which will be opened at 3:30, and every man that can possibly attend is urgently invited to do so. On Saturday evening at 3:30 I will deliver a message in the court house yard from a platform, on the stopped. "The Kindness and Gentleness of Jeaus."

The following from The Greenville Piedmont, gives some idea of the meetings conducted by me in Pelzor:
Pelzor, May 13—The revival service held at the Union church and conducted by Rev. W. F. LaRowe, a traveling evangelist, and the different pastors of the town closed Sunday night. The largest crowds over seen at a religious service of any seen at a religious service of any kind in Pelzer attended the evening services of this meeting. The church with the largest seating capacity of any town, scating some 1,200 was fill-

Bowel Complaints in India In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the in-terior of India where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamsick, that he had a bottle of Cham-berlain's remedy Choile and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it save his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventitive and cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms to bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere.
